

DIRECTOR

ROISIN HENEGHAN

RIBA, RIAI, Registered Architect in the State of New York, USA
M.Arch, Harvard University, 1992 B.Arch UCD, 1987

Originally established in New York in 1999 by Shih-Fu Peng and Roisin Heneghan, heneghan peng relocated to Dublin in 2001 after winning the international design competition for the new Civic offices, Aras Chill Dara, at Kildare in Ireland and had further success with competition wins, including the world's second largest architectural competition for the Grand Egyptian Museum in 2003.

With Shih-Fu Peng, Róisín oversees all of the design work in the office with a focus on the integration of the project into the overall land or cityscape and the spatial organisation of the project. She has overseen projects with complex organisations like the Egyptian Museum to flexible office buildings as at Aras Chill Dara.

Róisín has retained an academic discourse as a lecturer, tutor, visiting critic and reviewer at several universities including Yale University, Harvard University, MIT, University College Dublin and Cornell University. She has served as a jury member on several international architectural competitions.
