BIO | In 2007, I founded along with my associate the office named EXHIBIT, at a time when everyone was looking for a reapproach and a recalibration of architecture in my home town, Brasov. The moment I started the firm was during my first years of practice.
Over the years, the team of architects at EXHIBIT varied, but the stake of the office always remained the same - to create a team characterized by complementarity and agreement. I also sought to found a company that could be beneficent for the ongoing problems: the need for continuous debates, unfailingly connecting projects or issues to circumstances, readdressing the background and survey the new ideas with other experts.
Checking these off the list, while also supervising the urban scale of each place, will potentially combat architecture that generates harmful and unprofessional practices.
